

Captions:

Living in a confined space:

An intelligent conversion advances the potential of this London town house

Copyrights: Dornbracht

01a-b_Dornbracht_London City House.jpg

The London town house with its typically English brick frontage is located in the fashionable district of Shoreditch. Life here, in the smallest of spaces, is intelligently adapted to the reality of its urban environment.
Photo: David Morris, Di Mainstone

Ground floor

02a-d_Dornbracht_London City House.jpg

The small, dark reception rooms on the ground floor have become an open-plan kitchen and a dining and lounge area. A large patio door leads to the garden, letting in an abundance of natural light.
Photo: David Morris, Di Mainstone

Abdruck frei – Beleg erbeten / Use of images for publicity purposes – copy of article requested.

03a-c_Dornbracht_London City House.jpg

Decorated in natural tones, the kitchen features a water point with a three-hole mixer from the Dornbracht Tara series of fittings. The minimalist design of the polished chrome fitting harmonises with the design language of the kitchen and balances with the strikingly patterned black-and-white backsplash.
Photo: David Morris, Di Mainstone

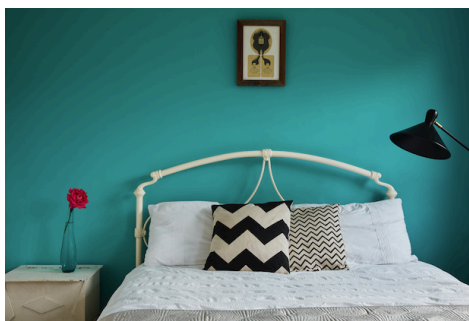

First floor

04a-c_Dornbracht_London City House.jpg

A bathroom with a washstand, rain shower and WC has been created in the free space under the stairs. Fittings from Dornbracht's MEM series have been installed. Photo: David Morris, Di Mainstone

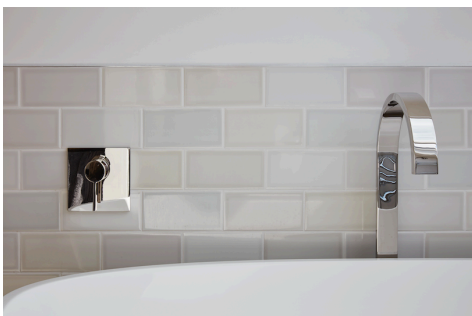

Abdruck frei – Beleg erbeten / Use of images for publicity purposes – copy of article requested.

05a-b_Dornbracht_London City House.jpg

The home concept is shaped by vintage and designer furniture, evident in the décor of the second bedroom. Photo: David Morris, Di Mainstone

Second floor

06a-d_Dornbracht_London City House.jpg

The highlight of this room is the luxury, free-standing bath and MEM bath spout from Dornbracht. They have been placed under the new skylight that makes the room seem light and cheerful.

Photo: Agnese Sanvito

Abdruck frei – Beleg erbeten / Use of images for publicity purposes – copy of article requested.

07a-b_Dornbracht_London City House.jpg

Another bathroom with a WC and washstand has been created in a separate area under the sloping roof. Here too the owners have opted for the Dornbracht MEM series of fittings. Photo: Agnese Sanvito